CONGRESS GROUP ACCUSES BENSON OF ARBITRARY ACT

Benson Told He Broke Faith With
U.S. Farm Program

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The House Appropriations Committee accused Secretary Benson's Agricultural Department of a "breach of faith" and "arbitrary and unrealistic" actions today and then voted it more funds than it had requested.

The committee took issue with the department's plans to shift spending emphasis from "action programs" to research and extension activities, and declared it is for Congress to determine the scope of the various departmental programs.

It voted the department $698,741,813 in cash and $230,500,000 in loan authority for the fiscal year starting July 1. This is the exact amount of cash requested but an increase of 45 million over the amount sought in loan authority.

Appropriations for the current year ran about $6 million more in cash and $4 million more in loan authority.

The bill, which was sent to the House floor for debate next Monday, cut some of the projects in the over-all farm program and recommended that the savings be added to the school lunch program.

The department had proposed reductions in the fund for the Forest Service, the Soil Conservation Service, crop insurance, the Rural REA, school lunches, and for disease and pest control work.

The committee said many of the department's proposed cuts were made on "an arbitrary and unrealistic basis."

It also described as "arbitrary" Benson's freezing of funds for some of the "action programs" last fall, only a few months after the department had pleaded with Congress for even more money than was finally voted.

Labeling this a breach of faith, the committee said the intent of Congress should not be thwarted by freezing appropriated funds.

While approving about 30 per cent of the increase proposed for state experiment stations and over 45 per cent of the increase sought for the Extension Service, the committee rejected the department's proposal to eliminate funds for indemnity payments for livestock destroyed in connection with tuberculosis and Bangs disease control programs.

The committee authorized the entire 250 millions requested for the conservation program for the 1955 crop year. The money to finance this authorization, which includes soil conservation payments, will be provided in next year's appropriations.

In Of Morgan

Members of the senior class of Morgan County high school received their caps and gowns this week for commencement exercises. What dignity on the campus!

West Liberty is a beautiful mountain town, and becoming more and more popular as a district meeting place. But somehow the town's streets just won't stay clean by themselves.

GOODWILL TOUR COMING
Advance agents for the Louisville Chamber of Commerce visited towns in this section, including West Liberty, to plan the itinerary of the 1954 Get-Acquainted Tour of the Chamber of Commerce. The Louisville delegation will tour Eastern Kentucky May 18-21, and will stop off in West Liberty for lunch and for a good will meeting with West Liberty citizens. More about this later.

MORGAN FATHER, 6 SONS SERVE IN ARMED FORCES
We believe that it will be hard to find many families in which the father and his six sons have been in military service. Morgan county can claim this honor. Amos Adams, who lived on Vance Fork of White Oak and on Caney was a soldier for 3 years. He now lives on a farm at Hammer.

Sheep Specialist Is Pleased With Interest Shown In Sheep In Morgan

Several Farmers To Start Sheep Flocks
In Morgan County

R. C. Miller, Field Agent in Sheep Production for the Agricultural Extension Service was pleased with the interest shown by Morgan county farmers. He spent last Thursday visiting farmers with County Agent Charlie Dixon.

They inspected the new flock of 30 ewes and 33 lambs owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Jones at Adele. The sheep were grazing balboa rye which had been cut off by a temporary fence. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are highly pleased with their prospects. They already see how much better lamb crop they would have had if their ewes had all been Western of the same breed and sired by a good ram. They have some fine lambs out of this kind of ewes. The 10 Western ewes have the 15 best lambs of the flock.

Burford Lykins of Caney is building about 20 acres of pasture in fields which he already had fenced and wants to get a flock of sheep this fall.

A. B. Cecil of Hazel Green got 37 mixed ewes. Twenty-five of them have raised 26 lambs and lost 14. He, too, can see the much better lambs and more of them from the good Western ewes in the flock. He plans to cull out all the others and buy enough good Western ewes this fall to bring his flock up to full size. His sheep were also making good use of small grain cover crops.

J. A. Oldfield of Mize told how he used to keep sheep until a dog raid proved too costly. He said he made more money from six ewes than from a cow year after year. He is hoping to begin a new flock of sheep this fall.

Tommy Oldfield of White Oak is interested in getting 100 Western lambs this fall. He expects them to follow his Angus cattle well and help keep his pastures clean of weeds.

Fencing is not as important with Western sheep as it is with native sheep. The new dog law is expected to be a great boost to the sheep industry. It will practically eliminate the stray dogs while protecting the good dogs whose owners are willing to care for them. It will prevent most of the damage to sheep by dogs and enable farmers to get paid for those that are killed or injured by dogs.

Farmers who are interested in getting some sheep should contact the county agent. A meeting of those interested will be held about July 1 to order the sheep.

PIE SUPPER NETS $313.52 FOR POOL

The community pie supper held in the high school gym here last Saturday brought in gross proceeds of $484.52 and net proceeds of $313.52 to add to the swimming pool construction fund.

Proceeds from the event raised the swimming pool fund to $6,125.92. Dr. Alec Spencer, chairman of the finance committee, said.

A large crowd attended the pie supper and entertainment. Thirty-five pies and cakes were auctioned off by Walter Franklin in his unique style. The highest pie brought $30.

Miss Pam Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Perry of West Liberty, won the beauty contest. This event brought in $111.

Music consisted of band selections by 13 girls and a boy from the Morehead Band, and guitar numbers and singing by Linvil Ball of Crockett.

Farmers Attend Bean,
Strawberry Marketing
Meeting at Salt Lick

Five Morgan county farmers attending a meeting at Salt Lick April 13, to study production and marketing plans for beans and strawberries.

Those interested in growing beans for market should contact county agent Charlie Dixon at once. The variety to use is TOP CHOP. No other variety can be marketed by the cooperative which will sell the beans. They should be planted between April 20 and 25 and fertilized with 800 pounds of 3-12-12 in the row. It appears that five acres of beans may be grown in Morgan county this year and sold through the Licking River Growers Association.

Those attending the meeting with Mr. Dixon were Mahlon Horst and Dorel Fyffe of Relief, Hobert Cassity of Crockett and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Jones of Adele.

VISITS IN WEST LIBERTY

John Tom Hazelrigg, prominent attorney and leader in Morgan county from 1847 until the 1880's.

WHIP WILDFIRE NOW, IS ADVICE

Now is the time to prevent wildfire of tobacco, said County Agent Charlie Dixon today. He said most farmers make the costly mistake of waiting too late. "There is no control for the disease," he stated. The only thing to do is prevent it. He made the following suggestions:

1. Be sure there is a ditch around the bed so that no surface water will run over the bed.

2. Treat the plants immediately with bluestone lime in the following manner: In one container, mix 4 pounds of fresh, hydrated lime with 3 or 4 gallons of clean water. In another container, mix 3 pounds of powdered bluestone in an equal amount of water. Mix the lime solution with approximately 45 gallons of clean water in tubs or barrels. Slowly add the bluestone solutions to this mixture while stirring constantly. Stir the mixture frequently while applying it immediately to the bed. This mixture will treat one bed 100 by 9 feet. It should be applied with a sprinkling can directly through the canvas. The side poles and a strip 3 or 4 feet wide around the outside of the bed should be treated just like the bed.

The treatment should be repeated in 10 days with 1/2 pound of 50 percent wettable DDT added to control flea beetles. If the bed is weeded it should be treated again immediately after weeding to kill germs that were pulled up on the weed roots.

GUEST PREACHER SUNDAY

State Farm Bureaus Split On Ike's
Flexible Farm Price Support Plan

(Courier-Journal)
It looks as though the honeymoon between some of the Southern Farm Bureaus and the American Farm Bureau Federation leadership is over. The A.F.B.F. had to compromise with some of the Southern states at its convention in Chicago last December. The price-support resolution that finally came out of the meeting was quite confusing.

Recently Allan B. Kline, A.F.B.F. president, told the House Agriculture Committee at Washington that the federation is in favor of flexible price support. Last Thursday, H. L. "Tiny" Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau, told the same committee a different story.

"The flexible or sliding-scale program started with our leaders at the top and they have been six years trying to sell it to the farmers," Wingate told the committee. "I feel certain a good majority of the farmers of this nation, if given a chance to vote, would vote for the 90-percent-support program."

That's just about what Representative Hope (R., Kan.), chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said last summer.

In making his statement, of course, Wingate knew that at least 11 state farm bureaus had voted in conventions last year in favor of the 90 per cent supports. Kentucky was one of those states.

JOSEPH A. GETZOW, president of Sportelz Hall, Inc., Harrodsburg, was elected president of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce at that group's annual meeting in Louisville on April 18. Getzow succeeds Dewey Daniel, Hazard banker.

P. JACK ARNETT DIES SUDDENLY

P. Jack Arnett, 86, who had practiced law in this section for 64 years, died of a heart attack at his home in Salyersville Sunday.

He had been in apparent good health until death. He appeared in court in Salyersville the day before as counsel for a defendant in a murder trial.

He was State Representative from Magoffin, Morgan and Breathitt counties in 1891-93, had served two terms as County Attorney of Magoffin, and his father before him, Fisher Arnett was a member of the Legislature in 1885.

It took Arnett three days to get from Salyersville to Frankfort in 1891. The trip required a two-day ride on horseback to Mount Sterling, where he boarded a train for the capital.

He was paid $5 a day for 535 days. Out of this came hotel room and board of $1 a day.

Among his colleagues during that session of the Legislature were William Goebel, Covington, who was assassinated early in 1900, and Judge James H. Mulligan, Lexington, author of the famous poem that proclaims "politics is the damndest in Kentucky." John Young Brown was Governor.

Arnett was an ardent horseman until his 75th birthday, when at the behest of his wife and two daughters he quit riding. He had never worn glasses and walked spryly with the aid of a cane. He attributed his well-being to plenty of water, once estimating that he drank 2 gallons a day.

Born on the Licking River, about five miles from Salyersville, he was a life-long resident of Magoffin county.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Harry J. Ramey and Mrs. Earl Cooper, both of Salyersville, a grandson, and a great-granddaughter.

"Farmer In The Dell" Will Be Presented At Cannel City School

Approximately 50 first graders will present "The Farmer In The Dell," a colorful and lively operetta, at Cannel City, April 23 at 7 p.m.

There really is no story. This operetta is a series of imaginary episodes that could happen in a child's idea of a secret dell. There almost anything can occur.

The action is preceded with a few comments by a commentator, Danny Lacy, and a song by the chorus. This song is developed around the English singing game "The Farmer In The Dell." Since the play begins at dawn, revellie is sounded, followed immediately by nature's own reveller, the Rooster. Then ensues a short episode between the Rooster and the Scarecrow, in which the Scarecrow shows his displeasure at being disturbed.

When the light of day is full, Puff, a gentle breeze comes to pester all creatures to activity. Very naturally two crows put in an appearance in which they prove that a scarecrow really scares. Then follows a series of short scenes with the Silver Bells and Cockle Shells, the Apples, Snug, the Bug in a Rug, Butterflies, and again the Rooster and the Scarecrow.

After this the farmer himself dominates his dell and we have a succession of events with Little Bo Peep, the Farmer's Helpers and Pretty Maids, Mistress Mary and an egg.

The show concludes with a song, "Commotion," when the entire cast is assembled and a final song, "Farewell."

The following children make up the operetta:

Commentator, Danny Lacy; Rooster, Virgil Lykins.

Scarecrow, Jackie Lykins.

Puff, the Breeze, Sheila Lacy.

Two Black Crows, Bill Gullett and Eddy Jo Gevedon.

Silver Bells, Bessie Haney, Vilma Gibson and Linda Phipps.

Four Morgan countians have organized a $20,000 corporation here to serve as bulk distributors of Ashland Oil products and Firestone tires in an area surrounding West Liberty that embraces Morgan and Wolfe counties and parts of Elliott, Magoffin and Breathitt.

The firm's offices will be in a 38x48 foot sheet metal building being erected on the lot. This building also will serve as a warehouse for tires and other automotive products to be distributed in the firm's area. Four 10,000-gallon tanks are being installed at the plant to store gasoline.

Officials of the new firm said they expected to commence operation in about three weeks.

The firm will operate three trucks to distribute gasoline, oil and tires to service stations in its five-county area. The new business will employ three truck drivers, a plant manager and a bookkeeper when operation begins.

The three trucks already have been purchased and have been sent to Ashland to have tanks installed on them.

The firm was granted a franchise to serve as bulk distributor of Ashland Oil and Refining Company gasoline and oils in Morgan and Wolfe and parts of Elliott, Magoffin and Breathitt counties, and to wholesale Firestone tires in the same area.

Gasoline will be trucked to West Liberty in trucks of the Ashland Oil and Refining Co. from its Ashland plant, and then will be distributed from the bulk plant here by the local firm's three trucks to various service stations in the five counties.

The new firm is the first business of this type in West Liberty and will add to the town's growing importance as a distributing and shopping center.

Now that butterfat prices are off, farmers might consider pro-duc-ing more veal, says Elmer Scheidenhelm of the Dairy Sec-tion of the University of Ken-tucky College of Agriculture. They might get 30 to 40 cents more a hundred for milk by let-ting the calves run with the cows, he said, than by selling cream. This figure also includes lib-er-ty allow-ance for the skim-milk which would result from separating the milk, he added.

"Farmers having the heavier breeds could expect to produce prime veal calves by using 1,200 to 1,400 pounds of milk," Mr. Scheidenhelm said. "In addition they would be able to sell the original weight of the calf to ad-van-tage, compared to selling a three-day-old calf."

It probably would pay to keep calves on cows at least six weeks, this dairy expert believes. Some farmers may prefer to raise calves throughout the year rather than milk cows, if present price situation continues, he ad-ded.

As March drew to a close, sev-eral new cities were declared "labor surplus" areas. However, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks declared there are "some in-dica-tions" that the final unem-employment figures for March will be below the February figure of 3,700,000.

Brown Swiss Group Plans Show May 1 At Farm At Martha

The canton show of the East-ern Kentucky Brown Swiss As-sociation will be held at the farm of Dr. H. R. Skaggs at Martha on the Sandy Hook-Blaine high-way May 1, the association de-cided at a meeting at Paintsville March 16.

Ernest Near, president of the association, called the assembly to order and introduced Dr. H. R. Skaggs, who is an Eastern Canton director, recommended that the officers of the association for the previous year be retained. This was agreed upon and no election was held.

Fred Gaumett, Eastern U.S.A. field worker for the Brown Swiss Association, told breeders to be careful in growing their calves that the care of the young played a big part in the amount of milk produced in later years.

Picturesque Elliott County Described by Lawrence Teacher

PALISADES along the Little Sandy River on Ky. Highway 7 (shown here) are only a sample of the rugged and picturesque scenery that greets the eye in many parts of Elliott county.

Would you like to tour and view some of the most beautiful and fascinating scenery in the country? Then come along with me to the canyon cliffs of Caney, Sinking and Gimlet Creeks, where the palisades extend upward to about 200 feet perpendicularly.

You view in the crevices of these walls clinging evergreens such as spruce, pine, and cedars, which look as if someone had planted them there. Close beside these we see rhododendron, holly with its red berries, laurel and wild honeysuckle, in the deep canyons the tall poplars and various other trees. There in the bed of the dark deep canyons the blue waters run their course down to the Little Sandy River. These streams can be traversed by jeeps or other means of transportation up to the falls. In the Sinking area the water disappears for some distance by some subterranean channel.

Towards spring you can see the "sarvice" trees with their white masses of snowy white blossoms, and later the red, juicy berries. Close by the cliffs, the Kentucky wonder shrub, the redbud, with its mantle of red then purple spreads over the hillsides especially in the coves or flats or on the edge of the cliffs. Then the most spectacular color comes, the dogwood, with its white cloak covering the various lonely spots. Now and then you see a pink dogwood intertwining with the white.

If you haven't driven along the ridge roads and seen the natural color scheme, you have missed something. California with its Shasta daisies does not equal the color you will see. Coming of good roads will take tourists near to these beautiful scenes where campers and picnickers can roam and view with delight.

Signs should be put up at Lime-stone and at other places where traffic enters the county, so people can see these wonders of nature. Why not boost our own state and counties, that have the beautiful scenes that Elliott county, for example, has?

I have not mentioned the many wild flowers, the birdlore that could be enjoyed.

CONGRESS MAY PASS, BUT IKE WOULD VETO 90% FARM BILL

If Congress is going home in early summer—as Congressional leaders insist—then a farm bill cannot be too long in coming out of committee. Over on the house-side members of the House Agriculture Committee are confident they can get a bill out extending high, fixed price supports.

They also think it will pass the House. On the Senate side there is likewise optimism that a high, fixed support farm bill will reach the Senate floor. Such a bill, of course, is opposed by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. The difficult circumstance for Benson, added to the fact that high price supports are popular with the farmer, is the fact that this is an election year.

But Benson has the President's support and the prospect seems to be a presidential veto of a high price support bill. Over on the House side, members say they will pass such a bill over the President's veto but there is less optimism on that count in the Senate.

It begins to look like a bitter fight might erupt on the question of passing a farm bill over the President's veto in May. If the bill cannot be pushed through with two-thirds majorities in both houses, then the country might be left without a new farm bill. Flexible price supports would then automatically become law. Maybe that's what Benson is counting on to bring him the sort of support program he hopes to run his department under.

FLORESS

By Nora Easterling

April 13—Happy Easter, everyone, at last it seems that spring has won.

From the winter, dark and drear, for I can hear the song birds cheer.

Wild flowers are blooming here and there; a gentle breeze is in the air.

It seems the purpose of our Lord is found in ways and deeds and word.

The cruel things that Christ did bear, a thorned crown on his head did wear.

Good Friday, He was crucified; now, that day is set aside.

On Easter he arose again, free from all care and pain.

This Easter Sunday let us pray, that we, like Christ, will rise that way.

Let's bear our trials and humble down, and some sweet day we'll wear a crown.

Not of thorns, that men may scorn, but a glorious crown, that Christ has worn.

U.S. POLICY STIFFENS

A significant change in the U. S. policy concerning Indo-China has taken place in the last two weeks. It all began as far back as January when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made a speech about instant retaliation against new Communist aggression.

In the past few weeks the White House has decided to go all-out in trying to win the war in French Indo China. The result has been a clear warning to Red China not to intervene directly in the Indo China struggle. The Chinese have been told, in effect, that the United States would definitely react vigorously to any such action.

President Eisenhower himself has lined up behind this basic policy. General Douglas MacArthur, who conferred with the President recently, is thought to be in favor of it.

With the tough attitude on Indo China also goes an American decision to rule out any possibility of the recognition of Red China at the April 26 meeting in Geneva. Some U. S. allies were hoping Communist China would exhibit more peaceful leanings if western powers considered recognition but the U. S. view is that Red China's continued assistance to Communists fighting the French in Indo China is proof that the opposite is true.

In short, the new U. S. policy is a firmer one than has been evidenced yet by this country. The statements of Secretary Dulles—about instant and massive retaliation—are actually surprisingly bold talk. If his threats are backed up, the United States almost seems committed to the use of major forces and perhaps new weapons, to counter any new aggression from the Communist world.

In other words, to sum it up, the United States is embarking on a bold policy in Indo China, administrative leaders no doubt being convinced this is the only policy the Chinese respect. President Eisenhower feels this country is now strong enough to follow a bold course. After three years of heavy rearmament, U. S. foreign policy is now backed up by a lot of military power—which alone commands respect from the Communists.

ASHES AND SOAP

By BERNARD E. WHITT

A few days ago I passed the old home of Green Salvers at the mouth of Vance Fork. The place is now owned by his son Leonard who lives at the mouth of Vance Fork. No one now lives in the old place. I saw an ash barrel just outside the yard fence. It is the only one I have seen for many years. I wonder if anyone in Morgan county there is one in use. I would like to know if any home is making their soap or using the lye of ashes to make hominy? When I was a boy, my mother had an ash barrel which had been a salt barrel. We emptied the best hickory ashes from the fireplace into the barrel. When it was full we would pour water in the top and let it seep down through the ashes and at the bottom under the barrel have some boards and a bucket to catch the red lye as it trickled out. This was used to make soap. Scraps of fat meat and old grease were used with the lye in a kettle to boil and make soap. After it got cold and hardened it was cut into cakes and dried in the sunshine to use for washing clothes and sometimes the face and hands.

I remember that later P & G soap was sold in the stores and it gradually took the place of soap from ashes. At that time there were no washing machines and women used a brass washboard and the soap.

As I look back I wonder in amazement as to how the hard rubbing and twisting the clothes dry with their hands. I am not sure was P & G stood for. It was evidently the trade name. Maybe it was Proctor and Gamble.

Then the second most useful purpose of the ashes was to use the lye to make hominy. You could take a large kettle that would hold about four gallons and take the lye and boil a kettle full of nice white corn to make hominy. At first the grains turned red and the skin of the kernel would break loose. After some boiling the lye was poured off and the corn washed and boiled again in clear water. Then the grains would swell to about two or three times the natural size, turn white and be soft and tender to eat. You could eat it this way or fry it for breakfast. It was good. Better than you now buy in tin cans. I never heard of canned hominy then. I think we are now living out of tin cans and paper bags. Four gallons of hominy cost us nothing then. We burned the ashes and raised the corn.

Someone will evidently say or think I am getting old and living in the past. That is true. But I am also living in the present. There is some pleasure and satisfaction in remembering the old ways.

DREW EVANS, SELF-MADE BUSINESS MAN, DIES SUDDENLY IN FLORIDA

Was Pioneer In Lumber Business In East Kentucky

Drew Evans, 80, Eastern Kentucky industrialist, pioneer in the lumber and allied businesses and community leader in Morehead and nearby sections, died Monday of last week of a cerebral hemorrhage while vacationing with his wife at Sarasota, Florida.

The end was unexpected as Mr. Evans had been in apparent excellent health although he was 80 years of age. Two days previously he attended a circus all-ways a pleasurable event for this man who made a fortune, but held a love for children and a keen insight into the joys and problems of his fellow men.

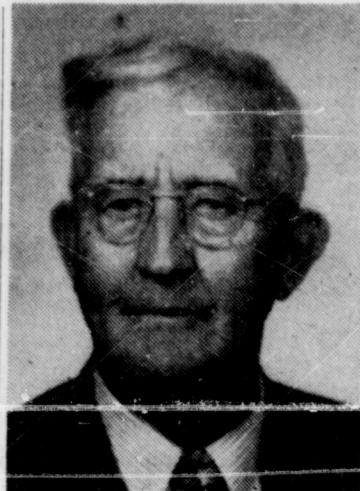

The body was returned to Morehead where funeral was conducted Friday morning at the Evans home with a large assemblage from throughout nearby counties attending. Burial was in Lee cemetery.

Son of the late William Evans and Sidney Jane Fraley Evans, he was born at Bruin in Elliott county, Dec. 23rd, 1873. Stories about his life are many and most of them are true about the farm boy who rose in stature and finances through hard work and foresighted business judgment.

His boyhood was spent on farms in Elliott and Morgan counties. He migrated to Indiana where he worked 12 hours a day with the harvesters for virtually his board and keep.

When a young man, almost 60 years ago, Mr. Evans returned to Wrigley in Morgan county and it was here he made his start, cutting the virgin timber of that area for lumber, staves and cross-ties.

Actually, Mr. Evans started in business with "nothing but my shirt-tail" as he put it. He bought a used saw mill on the credit and made an arrangement with the late S. M. Caudill, who operated the Wrigley General Store, to extend credit.

Until he could get some of his timber and cross-ties on the market Mr. Evans paid his men in scrip, good at Mr. Caudill's store. Checks for the lumber products from northern and eastern companies were slow in arriving during those days of poor mail service, and Mr. Evans relates: "I almost broke Sam and me both."

A bank finally agreed to advance a small sum, probably because they realized that Drew Evans was the type of young man who worked from sun up and sun down in the forests. He felled trees and used a broad-axe more effectively than any lumberjack on the job.

Any account of the colorful life of Drew Evans must commence with the factual statement that he was one of Eastern Kentucky's self-made business men. It should conclude that his judgment on business deals was almost uncanny. The only great mistake he made was that he didn't dispose of his large holdings of industrial stocks when the market crashed in 1929. He often commented: "I picked up the phone and called my broker the week before the market broke . . . after I talked with him a bit, I bought heavier instead of selling. My intention when I made that call was to tell my broker to sell every stock I owned."

However, Mr. Evans was shrewd enough not to be wiped out by the crash but he discontinued business operations during the depression years. Although a Republican, he predicted the election of Franklin Roosevelt; prophesied New Deal reforms; and was convinced by 1936 or 1937 that another World War would come within five years.

As signs of the war developed, Mr. Evans launched out in extensive lumber operations, including much sought after white oak staves for whiskey barrels, ties, lumber and other forest products. He was a partner in many lumber companies besides that which bore his name. Lumbermen trusted his judgment implicitly and it was said that he could spot a "number one cross tie or a good barrel stave on a passing truck."

Generally, when a lumber dealer in this area encountered financial adversity they went to Drew Evans and he re-financed many of them.

He kept few books, which may have been exasperating to his office help, but his memory was remarkably keen.

There are many true stories about his assistance to people who were "down and out." His judgment was rarely wrong, and Mr. Evans made money along with the individual that he had helped.

He was a member of the Morehead Methodist Church. When the present church building was constructed he offered to match the building fund donation of $1,000. Four members came through with that much, and Mr. Evans wrote his check for $4,000.

Since the war, his business has been operated mostly by his son, Eldon, who was a Colonel in the Army.

For the last four years he had spent the winters in Florida because "the climate makes a man live longer." He always missed his Morehead friends and cronies. In later life much of his time was spent watching farmers and small mill operators, all of whom he called by first name, unload at his yard.

Mr. Evans was a Kentucky Colonel on the staff of former Governor Simeon S. Willis, a life-long friend.

Cooperative manufacturers recognized Mr. Evans' knowledge of staves. He seldom wrote letters but coopers came to Morehead to consult with him. He was a member of the Associated Cooperative Industries of America at his death. He was active in the Masonic Lodge, being affiliated with Lodge 654, F. & A. M. at Morehead.

On Feb. 18, 1909 he married Lucy Thompson, who survives, and they became the parents of four children. A son, Drew Evans, Junior (June) was killed in an automobile accident while driving from Sandy Hook to West Liberty in 1938, where he was cashier of the Peoples Bank of Sandy Hook.

The surviving children are: Eldon Thompson Evans and Mrs. Sidney Layne, Morehead; and Mrs. Gladys McCartney, Flemingsburg.

He also leaves eight grand children: a brother, Clifford, of Bruin; and two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Mullins, Bruin, and Mrs. Polly Ann Kelly, Columbus, O.

IN IWO JIMA MANEUVER

Marine Pfc. Donald C. Adkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Adkins of Lenox, Ky., landed on Iwo Jima with the 3rd Marine Division during the recent "Operation Flag Hoist."

Nine years and a month after the first landing, the Marines came through the surf and dug out a beachhead in the similar volcanic ash, amid ruins of WW II. They powered their way inland, directing their attacks to an "enemy" force acted out realistically by the 2nd Battalion, 4th Marines who had spent a month digging in for the "battle."

Following successful completion of the mission—to seize, occupy and defend Iwo Jima—memorial services were held for the more than 4,000 Marines and Sailors who gave their lives in 1945 to take the island for use as an American airbase.

FISHING NEWS

Bernard Whitt, Fishing Editor

MORE ABOUT THE GORDON FORD CATFISH

Herbert Hammond said he believes that Joe Allen saw the fish. Tom Cox said if a reward was offered he believes that Don Cottle will get it. Alex Cantrell said that he believes Joe Allen saw something. Clifford Elam doesn't believe in big fish. He said they thought there was one at the Wheeler Hammond Rock a long time ago. He helped to hold the sack and when caught it was a very small one.

Trot Lines Reported Broken

Earl Tredway says that for the last twenty years he understood that trot lines at the Gordon Ford would be broken and hooks torn off. Roe Collins says that he has heard the same thing. D. N. Cottle was saying at Tredway's store Monday that "the fish held Jim Dennis under till he blubbered." However, he does not believe the fish is as big as Jo Allen said it was. Roger Lykins said that he remembers when Clay McGuire and some more men fastened a seine over the hole where the big fish was and tried to catch it, and that it tore through the seine just like a spider web.

Kash Back said that he was working on his farm last year and heard a noise in the river like a horse swimming. He went over and saw waves, and fish being thrown out of the water, and then saw the large fish as long as a man, after them. The fish swam around in circles two or three times.

$25 REWARD

A reward of twenty-five dollars will be paid by us for the fish capture dead or alive of the above-reported fish. No illegal methods shall be used. Immediately upon capture the fish must be taken to the conservation officer who will measure and weigh the fish in the presence of the sheriff of Morgan county and if it weighs one hundred pounds or more the reward will be paid and the fish divided between us.

ELLIOTT BURLEY AVERAGES $1064 PER ACRE IN '53

(From Elliott County News)

A total of 1341.7 acres of tobacco were grown by 1284 Elliott farmers in 1953, producing 2,506,387 pounds, or an average of 1868 pounds per acre.

The 2,506,387 pounds of tobacco brought a total of $1,428,066.33 or an average of 57c per pound. The average price that the Elliott county farmer received from one acre of tobacco was $1,064.76.

Out of the 1284 farmers who sold tobacco, 45 farmers sold tobacco in excess of their allotments of 17.0 acres and received "excess" marketing cards and paid penalty on this excess tobacco. Eleven farmers sold 7.7 acres of tobacco without an allotment and paid the full penalty of 20 cents per pound.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan DeBord of Rowan county have installed the first home water system in their community; Mrs. DeBord has a modern kitchen with all electric appliances.
